A check for $500, covering the cost of the Gettysburg Fire department's new inhalator-respirator and aspirator equipment was presented to Vice President William G. Weaver Friday night by Glenn L. Bream, exalted ruler of the Elks, at ceremonies held at the Elks home on York street Friday night.

A demonstration of the new equipment was given to a large number of firemen and Elks present for the ceremonies, by Anthony J. Bufano, representative of the E and J Resuscitator company of Philadelphia.

"Speaking for the 581 members of the Elks who gave this equipment, it is a pleasure to present this check," Mr. Bream said.

To Be Carried On Trucks

"The fire company deeply appreciates this gift," Mr. Weaver replied. "We feel that with this and other new equipment we are one of the best equipped small fire departments in the United States."

"The Elks very generously provided the funds. The fire company is ready at all times to provide the best service possible to the community," he continued.

"This is one of the many things we hope we will never need to use, but if we do, it will be ready. If it is ever needed to save a life, the family of the one whose life is thus (Please Turn to Page 2)

BELIEVE FUCHS STRIPPED U.S. OF BOMB DATA

Washington, March 11 (AP) — Dr. Klaus Fuchs, confessed Russian spy, may have stripped the United States scientific cupboard bare of all but its latest atomic secrets.

Further, it is considered likely among those familiar with the situation that he could have passed on to the Soviets highly "educated guesses," to say the least, about the rate of U. S. A-bomb production and the size of this country's stockpile.

Both are closely guarded secrets. So is all data connected with development of the "potentially more deadly hydrogen bomb. Fuchs was familiar with the theory of the H-bomb, too.

Members of the Senate-House Atomic Energy committee who saw the Fuchs confession for the first time yesterday took a grave view of the matter. Senator McMahon (D-Conn.), committee chairman, declined to say what was in it or answer questions about it.

Closely-Guarded Document

The confession, passed on by the British, reached the joint committee through the Federal Bureau of Investigation and the Atomic Energy commission. AEC officials met with the committee behind closed doors to go over the document.

It was learned later that some information, including dates and names, had been deleted from the closely-guarded confession before it got to the committee.

Fuchs, a Communist and leading British atomic scientist, was convicted on March 1 of betraying British-American atomic secrets to Russia and sentenced to 14 years in prison.

The German-born scientist had been arrested in London February 3, on evidence supplied by the Federal Bureau of Investigation. He had worked on the U. S. atomic bomb project from late 1943 until June 1946.

Rally To Be Held At Trinity Church

A rally for all the members of the Evangelical Reformed church in Adams county will be held at Trinity church Sunday evening beginning at 7:30 o'clock. Their pastors will be in charge of the special service.

The address will be given by Mrs. Marlene Maertens, St. Louis, Mo. Mrs. Maertens is a member of the staff of the Commission on World Service. Her husband was an admiral in the German navy and was liquidated by Hitler. She is a personal friend of the Rev. Dr. Martin Niemöller. She will tell of her experiences in Germany during the war and also tell of the work which the Christian churches are endeavoring to do through World Service to help the needy people.

This service is arranged in connection with the "One Great Hour of Sharing" Sunday being observed by 19 churches of the Protestant and Orthodox faiths. The public is invited to attend.

Capacity Crowd Jams School Auditorium

A capacity crowd jammed the high school auditorium Friday evening for the second and final performance of "Up To Your Ears," the three-act comedy presented by the senior class of the school. All seats were taken long before curtain time, and many of those present had to stand during the performance. The play was given first on Thursday evening.

MANY SERVICES PERFORMED BY RED CROSS UNIT

The Adams county Red Cross, seeking $12,742 in contributions during the current fund drive, today listed a number of typical cases in which it took an active part in order to describe types of service given by the county chapter.

In each instance, the names of the individuals involved were omitted and the situation changed slightly to make the case applicable to a number of such cases which have occurred during the past year and thus avoid possible embarrassment to the people involved.

Help Vets' Families

In a number of cases during the year, the county chapter aided veterans' widows in their application for pensions. The Red Cross office filled out the required forms and aided in assembling the necessary birth, death and marriage certificates. In several cases where there were errors in the papers, the Red Cross arranged to have the errors corrected in order to have complete and correct certificates to send to support the claim. In some cases old school records, Bibles, baptismal records and the like had to be secured, plus affidavits to substantiate the records. The widows were aided through the complexity of the papers, and their pensions secured.

Another case that occurred during the year involved the death of the father of Corporal X, U. S. Army. The father died, leaving his widow and three children, 15, 13 and 11 years of age in addition to the corporal. The family lived on a farm and the mother was unable to run the farm herself. The son, feeling that it was his duty to come home and take over the responsibility of the family, applied to his (Please Turn to Page 2)

LUCKENBAUGH APPEALS CASE

An appeal of Paul E. Luckenbaugh, 409 East King street, Littlestown, from the sentence of Justice of the Peace John H. Baschore in an aeronautics code case against him has been allowed by the Adams county court. The case will probably come up for trial in April term of court.

Luckenbaugh was fined $100 on the charge laid by state police after an airplane on which Luckenbaugh was working broke a rope and moved forward, killing a Littlestown child.

The Littlestown man held in his appeal that the matter was a question of whether he could be charged with criminal responsibility under the provisions of the code. The law firm of Buleit and Buleit is representing Luckenbaugh, who is free on $250 bail.

The county court this morning appointed Lloyd Benner as auditor of Hamilton township, following presentation of a petition signed by a number of residents of the township. The petition stated that John Micklely had been elected both judge of elections and auditor for the township and had chosen to accept the post of judge of elections. Micklely's resignation as auditor was affixed to the petition.

Tax collector bonds of Robert Long, Germany township; N. E. Shultz, Franklin township; J. H. Scott, Highland township; William M. Deatrick, Butler township, and J. Herbert Weikert, Gettysburg, were approved by the court this morning.

Memorial Books Given To Library

The Adams County Library has been the recipient of several books recently as memorials to county people.

Mr. and Mrs. Richard C. Lighter have given "As I See It from Ramplike Hill," by Leighton C. Taylor, in memory of Howard C. Mittinger.

Mrs. Richard W. Livingston has presented a cash donation for a book in memory of the late Eugene Sheely, New Oxford.

VFW Is Robbed At Littlestown

Thieves, who took with them a steel safe weighing between 250 and 300 pounds, secured approximately $500 in cash in a robbery this morning at the VFW home, West King street, Littlestown.

The theft was discovered at 9 a. m. today by Glenn Ohler, a member, who entered the home at that time.

Officers estimated that between $400 and $500 in cash as well as credentials of the organization were contained in the safe which measured two and one-half feet by 20 inches.

The robbery was set at some time between 1:15 a. m. today, when the home was closed, and the time of discovery.

Leon H. Gage, Littlestown chief of police, is investigating.

Conewago Scouts Ask Advancement

Applications for advancement to top Boy Scout ranks were presented Thursday night at a meeting of the Conewago district board of review conducted in the Metropolitan Edison building, Hanover.

One application for the rank of Eagle Scout was received, five scouts qualified for the rank of Life Scout and eight qualified for the rank of Star Scout.

The Eagle application came from David M. Dickson, Jr., Hanover, formerly of Gettysburg, and was forwarded to the council office to be submitted to the York-Adams Area board of review for final action.

Scouts who qualified for Life rank included Dean J. Sell, Troop 84, Littlestown; William Snyder III, Troop 85, New Oxford.

Advancing to Star Scouts were Dean Bankert and Paul Barnes, Troop 84; Charles E. Stockham, Theodore A. Stough, Jr., John Kratzert, John Schriver and Edward Stockham, Troop 85.

Hosts To 14 Leading European Hotelmen

Henry M. Scharf, manager of the Hotel Gettysburg, in his capacity as vice president of the Penn-Harris Hotel company, and Benjamin J. Keil, resident manager of the Penn-Harris, were hosts at a dinner given by the Penn-Harris company at the hotel in Harrisburg Friday night. The dinner was in honor of 14 leading European hotelmen from France, Portugal, Italy and Greece who are making a 30-day tour of the United States to study American hotel operation. The trip is sponsored by the U. S. European Recovery Plan program.

Three-Legged Deer Farm Yard Pet At Stine Home, Near Zora

Loss of his right hind leg, cut off by a mowing machine last year, proves only a slight handicap to Sandy, a 10-month-old buck deer which is the pet of Mr. and Mrs. Ellis Stine, near Fairfield. His picture was taken just after he was fed warm milk in the pail in front of him, in the yard at the Stine home.—(Gettysburg Times Photo)

Last fall a state trooper was driving along the Fairfield road toward Zora. As he passed the home of Ellis Stine, justice of the peace, he glanced casually toward the Stine house.

What he saw caused him to rub his eyes, and momentarily doubt his own vision. On the porch of the Stine home stood a deer.

Motorists can still see the deer in the yard or on the porch as they drive by, for the animal has "adopted" the Stines, and won't leave. At least he hasn't yet, except for one occasion recently, and then he returned.

"Sandy," as the Stines have named him, was only two days old when his right hind leg was cut off while Mr. Stine was mowing hay. It was May 28, 1949, and Sandy had been left by his mother in a comfortable, warm bed in the hayfield.

Befriended Injured Fawn

He was so small that Mr. Stine didn't see the little fawn until it was too late. The leg was severed above the knee joint. Mr. Stine picked up the deer and took him to the farm house, where he and his wife cleaned the wound and bandaged it, and nursed Sandy, feeding him with a baby's bottle and nipple.

Now, nearly ten months old, Sandy (Please Turn to Page 8)

Copies Of New Book On R. C. Nurses Donated To Libraries As Delano Day Is Observed

Copies of "The Red Cross Nurse in Action," a book detailing the history of Red Cross nursing since its founding by Jane A. Delano, have been presented to the Adams County Free Library and to the Gettysburg high school library in connection with the anniversary of the birth of Miss Delano on March 12, 1862.

Mrs. Roy Gifford, retiring chairman of nursing for the Adams county Red Cross, presented a copy of the book to the Gettysburg high school library Friday afternoon on behalf of the county Red Cross. Mrs. Alma S. Sullo, librarian, in accepting the book, termed it one greatly needed and added that books on nursing at the high school library are constantly in demand from students considering entering a nursing career.

The copy of "The Red Cross Nurse in Action" presented to the county free library was given by Miss Lavinia Dock, who resides near Piney Mountain Inn, and is one of Adams county's most distinguished residents.

Miss Dock Mentioned

Miss Dock is mentioned frequently in the Red Cross book for her activities in nursing through the years. She assisted Clara Barton in disaster relief in Johnstown and at Jacksonville, Fla. spent three years as superintendent of nurses in the Illinois training school for nurses, spent 20 years in public health nursing at the Henry Street settlement in New York city, and compiled a "Materia Medica" for nurses and collaborated in writing a four-volume history of nursing as well as a one-volume history, which has recently been re-issued. She was also active in work for women's suffrage and was one of the few American women jailed for her work in connection with the fight for suffrage.

Written by Portia B. Kernodie, the book, "The Red Cross Nurse in Action" gives details of the work of Red Cross nurses from 1882 to 1948. It tells of the life of Miss Delano who was born in Townsend, a hamlet in Schuylers county, New York.

She graduated from the Bellevue training school for nurses in New York city in 1886 and then became superintendent of the Sandhills hospital near Jacksonville, Fla. A yellow fever epidemic was raging in the southern states and one of her first innovations in the hospital was the screening of each patient's bed. Medical authorities at that time had not as yet proved the mosquito was the carrier of the dread disease, but suspected that it might be possible. Miss Delano acted on the suggestion.

Distinguished Service

After serving in a number of hospitals she became superintendent of the school of nursing at Bellevue hospital, and during the Spanish-American war became active in the (Please Turn to Page 7)

REV. HELD NAMED 3RD CREW HEAD FOR U.S. CENSUS

Laurence B. McCulloch, district supervisor for the 1950 federal census, York, today announced that the Rev. Charles E. Held, Gettysburg R. 1, has been appointed as the third crew leader for Adams county. John D. Lippy, Jr., Gettysburg, and Charles P. Rinehart, New Oxford, were announced as crew leaders previously.

Schools for census enumerators will be held here from March 27 through March 30, with crew leaders giving the instructions. The taking of the census will begin April 1.

Farmers will get special questionnaires prior to the start of the census.

A week or 10 days ahead of the start of the census this questionnaire will be put into the mails. Farmers will be urged to answer all the questions they can before April 1, skipping only those which need some clarification by the census taker when he arrives.

Detailed Farm Facts

Some of the types of information which the 1950 farm census will specifically provide are as follows:

Data on the farm operators, themselves—their ages, number of hours they worked in the previous week, number of years they have farmed at their present location.

Changes in number of farms, land and value of farm property since 1945. Every decennial census since 1920, for instance, has recorded a decrease in the number of farms, while the total acres of land in farms has shown a steady increase. Increased mechanization on farms has accompanied the trend.

Totals for the market price of farm land and buildings, data on farm size, change in the number of farms under 10 acres in size, statistics for part-time farms.

To Cover 50 Crops

Information on more than 50 field, truck and orchard crops, of which the individual average farmer will need to report only four or five. The census will ascertain the value of vegetables, the acreage harvested for sale in 1949 and dollar value of those sold.

A count will be made of the number and production of fruit trees for 1949. Amounts of berries and small fruits, nuts, livestock, farm slaughter of cattle and hogs, dairy product sales, and poultry will be determined.

Changes in the kind of work power, such as the horse, mule and tractor, will be shown.

Other results will be indications of the progress of mechanization, farm electrification, the amount of cash spent to operate farms, the amount paid hired workers on the farm prior to the enumerator's visit, the amount spent for feed for livestock in 1949, motor fuel and oil purchases in 1949 and expenditures for seeds, bulbs and plants in 1949.

Two Tax Collectors File Their Reports

J. Roy Chronister, Abbottstown tax collector, and E. S. Guise, tax collector for York Springs, today filed their annual reports with the county clerk of courts.

Chronister's collections totaled $9,896.99, while uncollected 1949 taxes totaled $2,282.69. The taxes secured were borough, $1,649.44; school district, $4,915.75; county, $2,347.26 and institution district, $984.53.

Guise collected $8,055.21 divided between borough, $1,231.04; school district, $470.59; county, $1,677.33 and institution district, $666.25. Uncollected 1949 taxes totaled $264.77.

Lane Heads "Open House" Committee

William G. Weaver, vice president of the Gettysburg Fire department, today announced the appointment of Walter B. Lane as chairman of a special committee to arrange an "open house" to be held in May.

Other members of the committee are Chief James A. Aumen, Assistant Chiefs Donald Jacobs and Donald McSherry, Raymond E. Menges, Eugene S. Sickles, Donald Staub, Richard Pinkbener, William Gilbert and Horace Bender.

The public will be invited to attend the "open house" and see the equipment at the engine house. Functions of the various pieces of equipment will be explained and operation of the new radio station demonstrated.

A meeting of the committee will be held Wednesday night, March 15, at the engine house at 7:30 p. m.

BIGLERVILLE'S FIREMEN DINE

Fifty-five members of the Biglerville Fire company and their guests attended the firemen's banquet Friday evening in the Ira E. Lady post American Legion home in Biglerville.

Ralph Sandoe, Jr., served as toastmaster. Speaker of the evening was Arthur M. Gordon, teacher in the Upper Adams Joint high school. Mr. Gordon spoke on important events of the past 50 years.

Two guests were introduced by Earl Carey. They were Mrs. D. A. Washinger and Mrs. E. D. Heiges. Officers of the company were introduced. They are: Dale Bricker, president; Ralph Sandoe, Jr., vice president; Ralph Taylor, secretary; John Lawver, treasurer; and John Deardoff, fire chief.

The singing of several songs by the group was led by Dale Guise. The invocation was given by Earl Carey.

The menu included: Chicken and waffles, mashed potatoes, peas, corn, pepper slaw, cake, ice cream, and coffee. The meal was served by the Auxiliary of the local American Legion post.

February Births Top '49 Figures

Sixty-one births, 32 male and 29 female, were recorded for Gettysburg and Cumberland, Straban, Freedom and Highland townships during the month of February. Ralph A. Geiselman, registrar of vital statistics for the area, announced today.

There were 17 deaths recorded in the district during the same month. The total of births so far this year was listed as 127, as compared to 107 during the same two months last year. Deaths during January and February totaled 26 as compared to 38 during January and February, 1949.

Gettysburg was listed as the birthplace for 31 males and 29 females, and the place of death for ten males and five females. There was one birth, a male, in Cumberland township, and one death, a male, in each case, in Straban and Highland townships. During February, 1949, there were 50 births and 12 deaths in the district.

OVER 1,000 HEAR MAJ. GEN. GRAY AT FRATERNITY EVENT ON FRIDAY

More than 1,000 undergraduates, alumni, national fraternity officers and guests heard Major General Carl R. Gray, Jr., administrator of Veterans Affairs, talk on the value of fraternities Friday night at the get-together of the 15th annual Interfraternity conference of Gettysburg college in the Plank memorial gymnasium.

"One thing you should get out of college is the ability to live with your fellow men intimately," Gen. Gray said. "I believe in these United States of America, and I want all the rest of the Grays to have the same principles—you can get these best in a good college and a good fraternity."

Gen. Gray asked Dean Wilbur E. Tilberg if the veterans' scholastic average was above or below the men's average at Gettysburg college. When he received the answer the veterans' average was above, Gen. Gray stated: "I've asked other school executives if the veteran is better than the average student, and received an affirmative reply. We find that the married veteran has a higher average than the single vet, and the married veteran with children has the highest average of all."

GUBITCHEV IS SAID TO PLAN RETURN HOME

New York, March 11 (AP)—Valentin A. Gubitchev, convicted as a Soviet spy, reportedly will accept the U. S. government's offer of release from a 15-year prison term on the condition that he go home to Russia.

The government had told the 33-year-old engineer that he could pick his own penalty for conspiracy and attempted espionage against the United States.

He could get out, and stay out, or he could go to prison for 15 years. It was reported that Gubitchev plans to leave the United States March 20 aboard the Polish liner Batory—the same ship on which communist fugitive Gerhart Eisler fled this country as a stowaway last May.

Both the New York Times and the New York Tribune said they had learned of Gubitchev's decision. The reported sailing date is four days ahead of the deadline set by Federal Judge Sylvester Ryan Thursday when he meted out sentences of 15 years each to Gubitchev and his co-spy, 28-year-old Judith Coplon.

The judge, on recommendation of the Justice Department and the State Department, said the Russian's sentence would be suspended if he made his exit within two weeks—"never to return."

The government has hinted that the offer was made in the hope that it might induce communist countries to accord similar treatment to Americans involved in court proceedings.

In Vienna, Mrs. Robert Vogeler expressed hope that the action would prompt Hungary to release her husband, an American citizen sentenced in Budapest last month to 15 years in prison on charges of spying for the U. S.

"We have set an example for Hungary to follow," said Mrs. Vogeler. "Maybe now they will release my husband."

But in Washington, the leeway given Gubitchev brought a charge of condemnation from Sen. Kenneth S. Wherry (R-Nebr.).

He said Secretary of State Acheson's "bungling of the Gubitchev spy case" was "further evidence of his unfitness" for his job.

"By what authority does Mr. Acheson say who shall go to jail and who shall go free?" Wherry demanded. "In the United States all men are equal before the law and that applies to Mr. Acheson too."

continuing officer for a dependency discharge. The local Red Cross was asked to assist the mother with her affidavit and the affidavits of disinterested persons who knew the family. Those affidavits were sent to the corporal, who was thus able to secure the discharge and rejoin the family.

Aid Service Men
A frequent request made on the Red Cross comes from servicemen overseas or in distant posts in the United States. They receive word about conditions in their families which causes them to worry. They contact their Red Cross Field director at their camp and he in turn asks the local Red Cross to visit the home and report on conditions as they really are. The results of that report may be to ease the serviceman's mind, if no emergencies exist, or may result in an emergency leave for the soldier or sailor to visit his home and straighten out the condition.

The same service operates frequently the other way. A member of the armed forces may receive no word from a son in service. The Red Cross is asked to aid, and it writes the field director at the man's post or camp. The field director investigates and reports back on the welfare of the serviceman.

Emergencies frequently arise, such as deaths in the family, illness or the like. In those cases the reports of the Red Cross make it possible for the servicemen to obtain emergency leaves to visit their homes.

Pair Of Motorists Fined For Speeding

A Baltimore motorist charged with driving his car 80 miles an hour on the Lincoln highway west of Gettysburg Friday afternoon was arrested by state police of the Gettysburg substation, and fined $10 and costs by Justice of the Peace John H. Basehore on the speeding charge. He gave his name as Ralph Lindsay Pich.

Another motorist, Harry E. Landis, of Ronk R. 1, Lancaster county, was fined $10 and costs by Justice of the Peace Robert F. Bell, Gettysburg R. 4, for speeding.

Omega, "The Writing of the Alma Mater"; Phi Kappa Psi, "Piano Melodies"; Sigma Alpha Epsilon, "The Dark Ages at Gettysburg"; Tau Kappa Epsilon, "Be A Clown"; Phi Delta Theta, "Mock Trial"; and Phi Sigma Kappa, "We Want A Date."

Cups Awarded
Cups were presented to the following fraternities: Phi Sigma Kappa scholarship first semester, 1949-1950; Phi Delta Theta, second place scholarship; Kappa Delta Rho, first place Christmas decorations; Phi Sigma Kappa, best float at Homecoming; Phi Delta Theta, intra-mural football; Sigma Alpha Epsilon, intra-mural wrestling; and Phi Kappa Psi, all-sports trophy.

Dr. Tiberg told the group in an introductory speech: "We are committed to the fraternity system, we think it is a natural in the American way of life."

William J. Barnes, president of the National Interfraternity conference, called Gettysburg "one of the leaders of this type of program," and remarked about the harmonious relations between the administration and the fraternities.

Walter E. Garman, president of the Gettysburg Inter-Fraternity Alumni Conference, introduced the national officers and served as toastmaster for the speaking part of the program. John C. Blair, III, president of the Undergraduate Inter-Fraternity Council, was master of ceremonies for the skits and presented the trophies.

Pledges Banquet
William J. Barnes, president of the National Interfraternity conference, told nearly 200 pledges of all the fraternities on the Gettysburg college campus that they "only could get out of a fraternity what they would put in it," at a pledge banquet at Hotel Gettysburg Friday evening.

Mr. Barnes traced the history of fraternities with Phi Beta Kappa, founded in 1776, as the first fraternity.

Simultaneous with the pledge banquet, dinner conferences took place in each fraternity house on the campus. "Alumni Relations" was discussed at the Alpha Tau Omega, with Dr. Robert Fortenbaugh, as the host moderator; "Scholarship," at Kappa Delta Rho, with Dr. C. Allen Sloan, moderator; "The Fraternity Man Looks at Religion," at Lambda Chi Alpha, with Rev. Wallace E. Fisher, moderator; "Chapter Hospitality," at Sigma Alpha Epsilon, Prof. Lester O. Johnson, moderator; "National Publications," at Sigma Chi, with Philip R. Bilde, moderator; "Fraternity Committees," at Tau Kappa Epsilon, with Dr. John G. Glenn, moderator; "Chapter Finance" at Phi Gamma Delta, with Prof. J. Blaine Saltzer, moderator; "House Mothers," at Phi Delta Theta, with Prof. Earl E. Ziegler, moderator; "Pledge Training," at Phi Kappa Rho, with John H. Knickerbocker, moderator; "Interfraternity Competition," at Phi Kappa Psi, G. Thomas Miller, moderator, and "Rushing," Phi Sigma Kappa, Dr. Kenneth L. Smoke, moderator.

Gettysburg college's co-eds, not to be outdone by their male classmates, put on their first "skit night" Friday evening at the Student Christian Association building.

Skits presented were: "Huber Hall Cafeteria," by Delta Gamma sorority; "Faculty Meeting," Phi Mu; "Progressive Education," Alpha Xi Delta; "Snow White and the Seven Dwarfs," Chi Omega. No prizes were awarded.

Parts Manager Is Honored By Club

G. A. Bream, of Warren Chevrolet Sales, Gettysburg, has qualified for recognition by the Chevrolet parts and accessories sales managers' Record club, it was announced today by C. N. Freeman, parts and accessories manager of the Harrisburg zone.

The qualification of Mr. Bream was based on his "efficient, neat and outstanding management" of the parts department in his dealership last year. Pins and certificates were presented to all club members at a luncheon meeting in Harrisburg recently.

"Mr. Bream performed an outstanding job of making replacement parts available to Chevrolet car and truck owners in this area in 1949," said Mr. Freeman, "and the Chevrolet Motor Division is happy to recognize his splendid achievement."

Tangerine Tree Bears Fruit In Local Grocery Store Window

One of Adams county's few tropical fruit trees is still full of vigor and fruit after more than a half century of existence here.

The tangerine tree, now owned by Robert E. McGuigan, Buford avenue, is no respecter of seasons. It may not yet be spring, but the tree has many blossoms on it, about 40 green tangerines on it and 50 ripe tangerines on it.

While it does its best in the McGuigan back yard during the summer months, it also seems to thrive in a large pail of earth when it is placed in the front window of the McGuigan grocery store during the winter months.

Its ripe fruit now is very sweet, but a little dry; in summer months the fruit is just as sweet, but seems to gain more moisture.

Came Here in 1898
The tree, now about 2½ feet tall, and about four feet in diameter across the top, generally has from 90 to 157 tangerines on it in various stages of development. McGuigan points out that it would produce larger and better fruit if some of the fruit was removed but adds that he feels it looks nicer when it has a larger amount of tangerines on it.

The tree, kept tiny by constant pruning, arrived in Adams county in 1898 when Louis Meals, father of Attorney William L. Meals, brought it here from Ohio, McGuigan relates. For years, the Meals family kept it at their home, planting it during the summer and putting it into a bucket of earth for indoor care during the winter months.

Eight members of the Biglerville high school basketball team left Friday afternoon to participate in the Class B tournament of the sixth annual Lock Haven State Teachers' college tournament. They were accompanied by their coach, Gene Haas, and his assistant coach, Charles Goodling.

The players were Clark Heller, Richard Pitzer, Daniel Bushman, Ronald Rice, Jack Howe, Larry Lawver, Edwin Spicer, and Cecil Sandoe. At 3 o'clock today they were to meet the Renovo high school team.

The 4-H club of Arendtsville has arranged a display in Hartman's store in observance of National 4-H Club week.

Cecil Snyder, vocational agriculture teacher in the Upper Adams Joint high school, spent Friday afternoon at Penn State college.

The Bendersville fire company was called out Friday afternoon to extinguish a grass fire on the property of George Kraft, near Starnier's Station. Firemen brought the fire under control in time to prevent damage to several surrounding buildings. The blaze resulted when the wind blew flames from a pile of burning debris into dry grass, which ignited immediately and could not be brought under control without the aid of fire-fighting equipment.

A roller skating party was held Friday evening at Littlestown by the FFA club of the Upper Adams Joint high school.

Mr. and Mrs. Ryland Garretson, Bendersville, and Mr. and Mrs. Robert Shafer, Biglerville, attended the builders' show at Harrisburg Thursday evening.

The Youth Council of the Sixth Sunday School district will meet Wednesday evening at 7:30 o'clock in the Bendersville community hall. At this meeting a report of the council's executive committee will be given and action taken to set up a future program of activities. A questionnaire has been prepared and will be distributed among the members at the meeting. Devotional and recreational periods will be parts of the meeting.

An assembly program was presented Friday morning at the Upper Adams Joint high school by students of Thompson's Business college, York.

Mrs. E. A. Meyer has returned to her home in Chevy Chase, Md., after spending several days as the guest of Mrs. Richard C. Walton, Biglerville.

TO PAINT BRIDGES

The State Department of Highways has let a contract to Gianoutis Brothers, of Pittsburgh, for $6,349, to paint seven bridges in Cumberland, Freedom, Huntingdon and Germany townships, according to an Associated Press dispatch from Harrisburg.

Turin Italy, March 11 (AP)—Aldo Villa of Genoa wanted to fly like a bird. He built a contraption with wings that flapped by bicycle pedals. It worked fine for 150 feet. Villa tried it again. This time it didn't. Villa is in the hospital with a broken leg.

Schellhase for programs and tickets.

To Broadcast School Program
A program, "High School Varieties," was presented by the student body in the high school assembly hall Thursday and was recorded by a Hanover radio station. It will be re-broadcast over that station on Sunday from 2 to 2:30 p. m.

Earl Humbert is the announcer for the program, which opens with the school dance band playing "Make Believe." Of the many clubs sponsored by the school, one of great importance is the Model Railroad club which is coordinated with the Industrial arts work. Allen Duncan tells that this club was organized October 27, 1949, and seeks to create interest in plastics, wood, metal, electricity, photography and drawing. They are planning to take a trip to "Roadside America," which is an elaborate layout of trains and villages, near Hamburg, Pa.

Annually, the students in grades seven to nine are given an opportunity for expression of talent. Lou Etta Miller discusses this program and gives a selection from the Junior high musical which was presented in the high school auditorium on Friday night. Another activity of the school is the travel club. Atlee Breighner discusses the latest planned trip for this club. This is followed by a skit from the junior class play, "If I Had Three Days to See" is the title of a poem written and read by Eleanor Harner. The program closes with the junior-senior high school dance band playing "Dear Hearts and Gentle People."

Leppo Kites Today

Funeral services will be held this afternoon for David H. Leppo, 70, well known retired farmer of Union Mills, Md., who died Wednesday at the Warner hospital. A brief service will be held at 1 p. m. at the J. W. Little and son funeral home, Littlestown, followed by a service in Jerusalem Reformed church, Bachman's Valley, Md. Services will be in charge of his pastor, the Rev. J. Keller Brantley, Westminster R. D., assisted by the Rev. Charles B. Rebert, Littlestown, a retired Reformed minister and former pastor of the deceased. Interment will be in the St. Mary's Union cemetery, Silver Run, Md. Pallbearers will be Stewart Hollinger, Curvin Hollinger, Malcolm Stewart, William Schaeffer, Jr., Ralph Bowman and Fred Yingling, all members of the IOM lodge of Union Mills of which the deceased was a member.

MAJOR LEAGUES OPEN PRACTICE CONTESTS TODAY

New York, March 11 (AP)—Defending champion San Francisco, the Cinderella team of last year, opened its uphill battle for another National Invitation Basketball Tournament title this afternoon.

The Dons were unseeded again and only have money in their game against City College of New York. But Coach Pete Newell insisted before game time that his boys were a good bet to win the glass slipper for the second straight year.

San Francisco (19-6) met CCNY (17-5) in the second game of an afternoon doubleheader.

In the 2 p. m. (EST) opener, Western Kentucky (24-5) played underdog Niagara (20-6). Of the 12 teams entered, Niagara is the only one playing its first NIT tournament. Western rated about eighth among the upstate New York teams.

LaSalle (20-3) is a 12-point favorite over Arizona (26-4), in one game tonight. In the other, Long Island (20-4) is seven over Syracuse (17-8). The four seeded teams aren't playing today. They drew byes and will play in the quarter-finals next week.

Seeded in order, they are Bradley (27-3), the nation's No. 1 team in the final Associated Press poll, Kentucky (25-4), upset in its first NIT game last year; Duquesne (22-4), one of its last three games, and St. John's (22-4), ranked the best metropolitan team.

Finals of the week-long grind next Saturday night. Bradley and St. John's play their first games Monday night, Kentucky and Duquesne Tuesday night.

The odds-makers haven't followed the seedings in listing the favorites. Bradley is a 3-1 favorite, Kentucky 1-2, Western Kentucky 4-1 and Duquesne, LIU and St. John's 8-1.

Baseball Briefs

St. Petersburg, Fla., Mar. 11 (AP)—With more than enough outfielders and infielders, Manager Casey Stengel of the New York Yankees wouldn't mind trading some of his excess talent for a reliable pitcher.

"I still could use another solid pitcher," says Stengel. "And if I had the kind of teams that home of the others have, I think I'd be picking up the phone and calling St. Pete right soon. We're still ready to make a deal."

Phoenix, Ariz., Mar. 11 (AP)—One of the big questions in the New York Giants' camp is whether young Jack Harshman will be able to cope with major league pitching. The 22-year-old candidate for his first base job has already proved he can handle a long ball in the minors, but it is also known that smart pitchers can get his number. Jack is attracting a lot of attention and his teammates admire the progress the slugger is making.

West Palm Beach, Fla., March 11 (AP)—Battery Coach Mickey Cochran named two lefties and one right-hander to pitch today when the Philadelphia Athletics open Grapefruit league play here against the Washington Senators.

They are Lou Brissie and Bobby Shantz, the southpaws, and Dick Fowler.

Clearwater, Fla., March 11 (AP)—The Philadelphia Phillies open a 7-game training schedule here today. The first opponent is Detroit. Manager Eddie Sawyer named Curt Simmons, Russ Meyer and Jim Constanly to share the pitching here.

San Bernardino, Calif., March 11 (AP)—Manager Billy Meyer split his squad today to open the spring exhibition schedule.

One group left for Burbank to meet the St. Louis Browns. The other reported to Palm Springs for a game with the Seattle club of the Pacific Coast league.

Meyer didn't designate "A" and "B" squads. However, the group meeting the Browns includes Home Run King Ralph Kiner and Wally Vestlake, the other power hitter in the Buc outfield. Kiner got 23 homers last year and Vestlake 24.

St. Petersburg, Fla., March 11 (AP)—Still trying to shake off a cold, Stan Musial will be out of the St. Louis Cardinal lineup today when his team meets the New York Yankees in the spring exhibition opener.

Stan's place in right field will be taken by Bill Howerton, who hit 129 for Columbus of the American association last season. Howerton finished with the Redbirds and batted .308.

Stricken by a chest cold, Musial is still coughing a bit.

Vero Beach, Fla., Mar. 11 (AP)—A flock of ailments plagued the Brooklyn Dodgers today, but Pittsburgher Ralph Branca's philosophical viewpoint brought a laugh from his teammates.

"We must be way ahead of the 'ankies in injuries and sickness' this year. We ought to be a cinch or the series," was Ralph's crack. He well remembers how the Yanks came 1949 world champs despite any handicaps.

Three more Dodgers were shelved yesterday. Bobby Morgan, Carl Furillo and Erv Palica all fell victims to fever or flu.

Littlestown High Begins Baseball

Sixteen candidates presented themselves on Wednesday afternoon for the first baseball practice for the 1950 season at Littlestown high school, with Clayton L. Evans as coach and George Dirlow, assistant. All of these men placed last season and five are letter men.

The following men reported: Seniors, all of whom are letter men: Everett Peaser, Glenn Crouse, Bob Snyder, Kenneth Rice and Gene Hankey; juniors, Francis Gerrick, William Koons, Richard Marshman, Jack Mackley, LeRoy Bish, John Bucher and Wilmer Duttera; and sophomores, Victor Reynolds, William Jacoby, Bernard Crouse and Harold Cool.

The first four days next week, while Coach Evans is attending the Coatesville Coaches Clinic, practice will be in charge of Mr. Dirlow. It was announced that the first home game will be on April 7 with East Berlin.

SYRACUSE TOPS MAT TOURNNEY; F-M PLACES 2

Princeton, N. J., March 11 (AP)—Syracuse, defending champion, enters the semi-finals of the Eastern playoffs today at the head of a list of 16 competing college teams.

The Syracuse team, with seven quarter-final wins, is followed closely by Lehigh, regarded as chief threat to the Orangemen's crown. Lehigh marked up six victories last night.

Only Penn State, credited with five winners, remained within two counts of the tourney leader.

Princeton and Yale ended last night's quarter-finals with 3 winners, Rutgers, Franklin and Marshall and Army, 2 each; and Virginia and Navy, one each.

Syracuse's three title holders, Ken Hunte, Pascal Perri, and George Gebhardt, won by decision in their respective classes.

In the 175-pound class Gebhardt won over Navy's Dave Jones, 7-6. 165-pounder Perri decided Walter Ramsey of Princeton, 8-2, and in the 155-pound bracket, Hunte gained a 10-2 win over Charles Calderaro of Rutgers.

Lehigh's 136-pound defending champion Dick Kelsey, seeking his third straight crown, won over Army's John Wasson by a referee's decision.

Mike Filippos, 121-pound titleholder, also from Lehigh, thrashed Russ Weimer of Penn with a body press at 5:11.

Princeton's Dave Poor, defender of the 128 pound crown, decided Jack Dreibeis of Penn State 8-2. Heavyweight defender, Homer Barr of Penn State, used a knee lock to throw Charles Keith, Harvard, at 3:50.

Sports Roundup

By HUGH FULLERTON, JR.

Syracuse, N. Y., March 11 (AP)—After the tragic death of Laverne Roach following a fight at St. Nick's, there was a lot of talk about requiring boxers to wear head guards. The Intercollegiate Boxing Association has used these devices for two years and the coaches gathered here for the 27th IBA tournament agree they provide a "heck of a lot" of protection. "I told Eddie Eagan last night," says Eddie Lafond of Catholic U., "that the pros had better start using them right away." The guard the collegians use is a narrow band worn just above the eyebrows, protecting the ears, and covering the back of the neck with a sponge rubber pad. It might not be enough to prevent deaths or serious injuries, but it would help. Lafond, Roy Simmons of Syracuse and Al York of Virginia all say the neck pad helps to absorb the shock when a boxer is hit and when his head strikes the floor. And they definitely prevent cuts. "Most cuts are caused by butting heads together," Simmons explains. "But when they wear the guards properly, they bump with the padded part. We only had one cut in last year's tournament." It might be added that college bouts are stopped for even minor cuts. "There's just one trouble," adds Penn State's Eddie Sulk. "The people who want boxing abolished when some boy is killed are the same ones who holler for blood when they go to a fight."

Mr. Weaver said the fire company has set up a rescue squad which will be trained by Assistant Chief Donald Jacobs. The school will be held immediately after the regular fire company meetings each month, Jacobs said.

It was announced following the demonstration that the Citizens Oil company has offered to provide the oxygen for the new inhalator at no cost to the fire company, and the local gas company has offered to provide oxygen whenever and wherever needed should the normal supply be exhausted while being used in a rescue effort. Should extra oxygen be needed, a radio message back to the engine house would be transmitted by telephone to the gas company, which offered to dispatch one of its trucks with the needed oxygen, to any location in the county.

Today's Talk

By GEORGE MATTHEW ADAMS

ONE'S BEST FRIEND

People who can get along happily with themselves can get along with about everyone. A man is his own best friend. Life offers to us all an endless number of interests — so many that any one of us can only manage but a comparative few.

The idle, the unambitious, and the uncaring, are the unhappy people in this world. There are, with only a small cabin to live in, which he built himself, at Walden Pond, didn't make a business of loafing away the days. He had made friends with himself, and so gathered about him scores of interests. Not a move or a sound occurred without his notice. He companioned by himself.

How quickly time goes by, when we are engaged in something that both interests and enriches us. It's when people have nothing to do, with no responsibility, that they grow restless and unhappy. We ought, at all times, to endeavor to get on better terms with ourselves, so that at no time we would be caught in the net of loneliness or temporary despair. Every day of our lives we should grow more companionable to ourselves.

Somerset Maugham has commented upon the fact that American men have few friends, and he attributes this to the fact that men seem to think they are too busy to bother with the cementing of friendship. Of course they have their many associates, but rarely genuine friends for friendship's sake—someone to be with, to talk to, and to inner-commune with. I think perhaps he is right. I have a goodly list of acquaintances, but I am of the opinion that I could put my hands upon but a small handful who would go to the depths with me! Strange, isn't it?

This is one reason why we should early form an intimate friendship with ourselves. We are bound to be alone a great deal during the time of life's span. Knowing ourselves better than anyone else, we should therefore be on the best of terms with ourselves. Emerson once said that the strongest man on earth was the man who stood most alone.

We can be so happy with our special interests, especially if we are concerned with the interests of others. That is one way by which we can become universal, though remaining individual.

THE PERFECT MAN

The man she married older grew And changed a lot, as husbands do.

As time went on she learned that he Had many faults she'd failed to see.

She wished when they were in a crowd His laughter wasn't quite so loud.

He left his clothing tossed about, And though his love she didn't doubt,

She'd ask him sadly now and then: "Why can't you be like other men?"

Not so the man she might have wed, If he be living still, or dead,

Or rich or poor, or thin or stout, He's still a man to talk about.

He kept the charm which once he had,

No faults has he to make her sad, There are no wrinkles on his face.

Time has not left on him a trace, He stays, when all is done and said.

The perfect man she might have wed.

PA. DEMOCRATS PICK DILWORTH AND MUSMANNO

By LEONARD A. UNGER

Harrisburg, March 11 (AP)—Pennsylvania's Democrats lined up today behind an organization slate headed by Richardson Dilworth for governor.

Official word went out to county chairmen to circulate nomination petitions for Dilworth and the remainder of a newly endorsed slate comprising:

Judge Michael A. Musmanno of Allegheny county for lieutenant governor.

State Sen. Frank W. Ruth of Berks county for secretary of internal affairs.

Judge Michael J. Eagen of Lackawanna county for the state supreme court.

Judge Roy I. Carson of Washington county for the state superior court.

Myers Endorsed Before

The endorsements were made in the form of "recommendations" by the 13-man Democratic Policy committee here yesterday.

U. S. Francis J. Myers is the sixth candidate on the statewide ticket in his bid for reelection. He, however, got the support of the entire Democratic state committee a month ago.

It took the policy committee only an hour and half to round out the slate after two previous meetings ended in disagreement.

The bone of contention had been the choice of candidate for lieutenant governor. A whirlwind campaign by labor spokesmen put Musmanno over and Mayor David L. Lawrence of Pittsburgh announced for the jurist ever in the advance of the meeting yesterday.

Some Staying In

Dilworth's slating left open the question on the extent of opposition he may have in the May 16 primary by independent candidates.

Clarence Bowers, Reading battery manufacturer, and Henry Arthur Morris, Mahanoy city businessman, said they will stay in the gubernatorial race to the end.

Dr. William C. McClelland, Allegheny county coroner, said his nomination petitions will continue to be circulated for governor. And U. S. District Guy K. Bard of Lancaster county, mentioned as a possible gubernatorial aspirant, declined to comment on the Dilworth selection and his own future plans.

March 27 Last Day

However, Austin E. McCollough, Jr., chairman of the committee that sponsored Bard's candidacy, said petitions for all candidates recommended by the committee "will be circulated at once" in Lancaster county.

"On behalf of the supporters of Judge Bard, I congratulate the policy committee on its statewide geographical selection of Democratic candidates for the fall election," McCollough said, adding: "I am confident that the ticket will be victorious in November."

Mayor John F. Davis of Reading was not available for comment. However, he previously said he would run regardless of who the committee named.

March 27 is the deadline for filing nomination petitions and candidates must indicate their intentions by then.

Littlestown

Littlestown — Mrs. Helen Hurst, Hanover, will be guest speaker Wednesday evening at 8:30 o'clock at the monthly meeting of the Woman's Community club of Littlestown and vicinity to be held in the P. O. S. of A. hall. The meeting time for the club is 45 minutes later than the regular meeting time to give the members an opportunity to attend the midweek Lenten church services in the various churches. The program committee consists of Mrs. John H. Fleming, chairman; Mrs. Millard Basehoar, Mrs. LeRoy Bish, Mrs. Irvin Kindig, Mrs. Monroe Stavelly and Mrs. Paul Bowman. Hostesses will be Mrs. J. Harvey Pettyjohn, chairman; Mrs. Lesbia Crouse, Mrs. Harry T. Harner, Mrs. Paul E. Altoff, Mrs. John LeGore and Miss Evelyn Hornberger.

The report of the custodian of the Littlestown branch of the Adams county Free Library reveals that during the past months 51 books and 14 magazines were loaned.

Miss Elaine Stavelly, a student nurse at the Garfield Memorial hospital, Washington, D. C., spent Friday at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Lloyd L. Stavelly, Park avenue.

Clayton L. Evans, Littlestown high school coach, will be in Coatesville from Monday to Thursday inclusive next week, where he will attend the Coatesville coaches' clinic in the Moscow: March 11 (AP)—Peace talk puzzling in its contradictions, was warring Europe's main topic today, though secrecy, censorship and rumors kept peace prospects an unknown quantity in the war equation.

This much was certain: Four representatives of Finland, headed by Premier Risto Ryti have been in Moscow negotiating for peace with the Kremlin.

Moved: Mr. and Mrs. John D. Lippy, Sr., have moved temporarily from 47 Chambersburg street to 161 Seminary avenue.

Advisory Council Is Being Revived

Harrisburg, March 11 (AP)—Nine members were named Friday to the revived state Advisory council, to advise on matters of labor and unemployment compensation.

Gov. James H. Duff appointed three members each from the fields of labor, management and the general public in accordance with the 1936 Unemployment Compensation act.

The council will advise on administrative matters and prepare research material for possible legislation to keep the jobless benefits law up to date. It last functioned in 1944.

HAS TRIPLETS IN THREE DAYS

Jonesville, La., March 11 (AP)—Three days—three babies.

That's the way it was for Mrs. Leslie Hardie, the 36-year-old wife of a houseboat fisherman.

Mrs. Lester, already the mother of seven other children, gave birth to triplets at the rate of one child a day for three consecutive days.

"I examined her and knew twins were coming," said Dr. M. G. Nasif who delivered the babies at his clinic here, "but the third child surprised me, and the father was really upset."

He described the three youngsters as healthy and normal.

The first was born at 8 o'clock Tuesday morning — a five-pound boy; the second, a six-pound girl, was born at 9 o'clock Wednesday morning. A seven-pound girl born at 12:15 a. m. Thursday completed the trio.

"I haven't checked into it," said Dr. Nasif, "but it's the first time I've heard of triplets with different birthdays."

The upset father is 35.

Mrs. Gibbs Won't Be At Husband's Trial

Pittman, N. J., March 11 (AP)—Mrs. Edward Gibbs will not be on hand when her husband goes on trial in Lancaster next week in the slaying of Marian Louise Baker, Franklin and Marshall college stenographer.

Mrs. John R. Woodward, mother of Mrs. Gibbs, said yesterday her 23-year-old daughter will not be in Lancaster any time during the trial.

"Helen feels that she owes him nothing," Mrs. Woodward said.

PLAN FIRE SCHOOL

A district fire school will be held Sunday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock and Monday at 7:30 p. m. in the Bon-neauville fire hall. Fire companies represented in this district are Bon-neauville, Centennial, Conewago and Kingsdale.

HOW MYERS VOTED

Washington, March 11 (AP)—Senator Myers (D) of Pennsylvania joined with 43 other senators Thursday in approving a compromise bill providing for funds to enforce the rent controls between now and June 30. The measure passed 44-28. Senator Martin (R-Pa.) was not listed as voting.

Coatesville high school. This clinic will be attended by coaches from Pennsylvania, Maryland, New Jersey, Delaware and parts of New York state.

The Young Men's Bible class of St. Paul's Lutheran church, John Kump and H. Dean Stover, teachers, will hold their monthly meeting on Tuesday, March 14 at 8 o'clock in the social room of the church.

Mrs. Dale Stary, East King street extended, was hostess to the March meeting of the Alta Hummer Missionary society of St. John's Lutheran church Thursday evening. Mrs. Preston Myers was leader for the evening. Group singing was in charge of Mrs. Luther Myers. Psalm 71 was read responsively. The leader read a lesson from St. Luke and St. John. "Americans Grow Older" was the topic for the evening. It was written by the Rev. Francis Snarrer, a member of the staff of the Board of Social Missions of the ULCA.

After an introduction to the topic by the leader, the following readings pertaining to the topic were presented: "How the Congregation Serves Older People," Mrs. Kenneth D. James; "Increased Life Expectancy and the Problem of Caring for Older People" by Mrs. Preston Myers; "Incomes" by Mrs. Paul Bowers; "A Superintendent's Story on Incomes," by Mrs. Luther Myers; "Different Types of Old Folks Homes," Miss Evelyn Aspers; "Medical Care," by Mrs. Harry O. Harner; "Social Activities," Mrs. Paul E. King and Mrs. J. Edgar Yealy; and "Church Responsibility for Older People — What Can We Do About It?" by Mrs. Elmo Jones. Mrs. Paul E. King, president, conducted the business session and Mrs. Samuel Renner presented the secretary's report. An imaginary food sale was conducted. Mrs. King announced that the Adams District Missionary conference will be held at St. David's church, near Hanover, on April 10, at which they are planning to have a speaker from Japan. Guess packages donated by Mrs. Alvin Graft and Mrs. Elmo Jones were received by Mrs. King. The next meeting will be held Thursday, April 13, at the parsonage, West King street, with Mrs. Kenneth D. James as the hostess and Mrs. Luther Myers as the leader.

New Oxford

New Oxford — Marcia Ann Wagner, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Bernard Wagner, York, visited local relatives during the week.

Charles I. Groft, Jr., has accepted a position with the local appliance store of his relative, Glenn C. Chronister.

The five-day mission conducted for parishioners of the Immaculate Conception Catholic church and their friends both Catholic and non-Catholic, was brought to a close Friday evening with a solemn service beginning at 7:30. The Rev. Father Brady of the Dominican order spent the week here to conduct the mission which was opened Sunday evening. This was the first mission conducted here in more than three years. The pastor of the congregation is the Rev. Robert D. Hartnett.

Mrs. Curvin A. Miller has returned from the Hanover hospital with her son, Maurice Anthony, born there February 22.

Leon Smith, local barber, was among a large group of barbers from nearby towns who visited the Paradise Protectors recently to trim the hair of the boys who reside there.

Mrs. Llewellyn Zartman was among the large group of guests who attended a recent shower at the Hanover home of Mr. and Mrs. Meredith Wildasin in honor of their daughter, Mrs. Charles Pfaff, also of Hanover.

Mrs. William Bennett, Hanover, and children, Billy and Louise, were recent visitors in this section. Mrs. Bennett is a former resident of this area having been Miss Evelyn M. Todd, daughter of Joseph J. Todd.

Mr. and Mrs. Vernon Trimmer, near Pine Run, became the parents of twin sons last week at the Hanover hospital. Mrs. Trimmer is the former Miss Grace Goulden, a daughter of Lawrence Goulden, East Berlin.

Mrs. Richard Newhard and son, Michael, who resided here for a time with her mother, Mrs. Edith Weaver, and later with a sister, Mrs. George Rudisill, Carlisle, have left for Seattle, Wash., as the first step of their journey to Japan where they will make their home while her husband, Sergeant Newhard, is stationed there. The sergeant, formerly on duty at New Cumberland, has been on Japanese detail for nearly a year. Mrs. Newhard was formerly Miss Martha Weaver.

Initial plans were laid during the past week for the organization of a junior choir for St. John's Reformed church, New Chester. The pastor is the Rev. Alton M. Leister.

York Springs

York Springs — Lt. Charles Middleton, who was previously stationed at Ft. Riley, Kans., and who was seriously ill there for several months last year, has now recovered and is on duty in Japan. He recently notified his wife, who is staying here for a time with her young daughter, Suzanne and Cynthia, of his safe arrival. The family will leave to make their home in Japan as soon as arrangements can be made.

The engagement of Miss Barbara Ann Fogelsanger, Westminster, a teacher in Carroll county, Md., to Roger W. Gise, a son of Mrs. J. B. Gise and the late Mr. Gise, this place, was announced recently by her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Fogelsanger. No date has been announced for the marriage.

Mrs. Anna Williams was hostess at her home during the week to a meeting of the missionary group of the local Church of God of which the Rev. Donald G. Roemer is minister.

The local Girl Scout troop conducted a card party for the public on March 3 at the local community hall where they also held a baked goods and refreshment sale at the same time.

Motion pictures of the 1949 World Series baseball games were shown to the public Tuesday evening by the local Lions club at the community hall following a meeting of the Lions at Wishard's restaurant.

The Willing Workers organization of the local Lutheran church which has been working on several projects recently to finance the laying of a new carpet in their church is holding a baked goods sale this afternoon at the church property.

Mrs. Herbert Neighbours, Emmitsburg, was admitted to the Warner hospital in Gettysburg on Wednesday. Mrs. Neighbours has pneumonia.

Martha Horner, who has stayed with Mr. and Mrs. Weldon Shank and family, Emmitsburg R. D., for the past three years, went to Baltimore on Wednesday where she will spend several weeks and then return to her home in Washington, D. C.

Miss Barbara Matakovich, of Jessup, Pa., recently visited with Miss Loretta Boyle, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Bernard Boyle, of East Main street.

Those who took aptitude tests in Baltimore for Saint Agnes' hospital, Baltimore, on Saturday from Emmitsburg included Janet Adams, Romaine Feeser, Loretta Boyle and Barbara Matakovich of Jessup, Pa.

Mrs. Andrew Eyster and daughter, Nancy, West Main street, spent Monday visiting with Mrs. Eyster's sister, Mrs. Raymond Reifsdiner, in Hanover.

Mr. and Mrs. Andrew Keilholz, East Main street, spent Tuesday evening in York, Pa., where they attended the surprise birthday party for Mr. Keilholz's sister, Mrs. Frank Troxell.

Mrs. Weldon Shank and children and Martha Horner spent Tuesday in Smithsburg where they visited with Mrs. Shank's cousin, Mrs. Mary Miller Patrick.

The Vigilant Hose company of Emmitsburg will have its regular meeting at the Firemen's hall on Tuesday evening at 8 p. m.

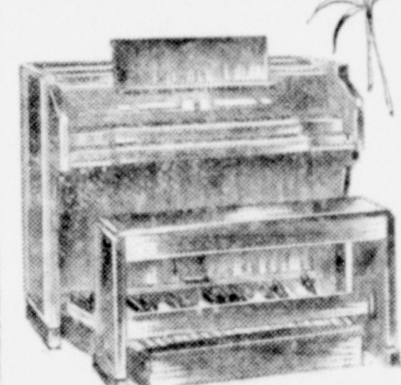

In the Presbyterian church with Rev. Charles S. Owen as the pastor, "What Is the Church?" will be the topic of the sermon at the divine service of worship at 11 a. m. The Mite society will meet on Tuesday at the home of Mr. and Mrs. F. J. Longpre.

Rev. Adam E. Grim, pastor of the Methodist church, announces the Sunday school service at 10 and the service at 9 a. m.

With Rev. E. P. Welker as pastor of the Reformed church of Emmitsburg, Sunday school will be held at 10 a. m. and the service at 10:45 a. m. to be held in the Methodist church.

ROMANCE AGAIN POSES PROBLEM FOR BRITISHERS

By DEWITT MACKENZIE
(AP Foreign Affairs Analyst)

The romance of the young Oxford-educated Negro chief of the South African Damangwato, who made a white London tycoon his queen, has suddenly become an imperial issue and put the British government on a most uncomfortable spot.

The 27-year-old Chief Seretse Khama, ruler over 150,000 subjects in Bechuanaland, married Ruth Williams, 24, in London some months ago and took her to his clay-hut capital as queen. You wouldn't think that was anything to worry the empire upon which the sun never sets, but events soon proved any such idea to be fallacious.

The great Union of South Africa, which is a neighbor of Bechuanaland, has constantly before it the burning issue of segregation of the white and Negro races. The case of Chief Seretse Khama and his white queen suddenly got entangled in this broader question—and the young couple were in trouble.

The British government invited Seretse to London recently to discuss his status. The government decided that it couldn't recognize him as chief because of what was described as tendencies to disruption which threatened the protectorate. He was told that he couldn't return to his state, without permission, until the issue of tribal rule is settled years hence.

The Chief Blew Up

The chief blew up over that. He said he had been tricked. His wife was in Africa and they were expecting a baby. He declared in effect that come hell or high water he was going back to his wife and people. He cabled the queen to sit tight.

The scene then shifted to the mother of Parliaments. No less personage than the great Winston Churchill, leader of the Conservative opposition, rose in Commons to question the socialist government's handling of the case.

Patrick Gordon-Walker, common-wealth affairs secretary, denied that the question of Seretse's marriage entered into the decision. He said the government decided to withhold recognition from the chief until the disappearance of the tendencies to disruption "which threaten the unity and well-being" of the protectorate. The secretary declared it was irresponsible to say the chief had been tricked, adding that he had offered to have the wife flown back to London, with full medical attention.

Churchill Takes A Hand

"Will not the minister consider," asked Churchill, "that Seretse has a right to go back to that very place and meet her at that very place before the government take any further action?"

Gordon-Walker replied that he couldn't do so, whereupon Churchill retorted: "A very creditable transaction."

In all this exchange nobody put his finger on the apparent underlying cause of the government's action. That was left for the British press to do. The London Times referred to the government being under "the urgent pressure of an embarrassing political situation," and adds:

"The decision has been reached without any attempt by the Union of South Africa to influence it. It is common knowledge, however, that the Nationalists now in power are not only committed to the doctrine of the separation of the races but dislike sharing their continent with other communities in which it is not applied."

"The truth is that British Africa is divided between one great independent state, which believes in the color bar, and a number of smaller states in which the color bar is repudiated. The conflict is tragic for the commonwealth but it cannot forever be evaded."

The times also speaks of the Nationalists being likely to press for the transfer of Bechuanaland to Union sovereignty if they see growing up there a society fundamentally at variance with their ideas.

The accident prevention need is not merely to slow down but to speed up about it.

Why the Heater Cools

Owners of new cars with hot air heating systems that provide a means of drawing air into the car from up front are finding what old timers learned many years ago when the same arrangements were in use. If it is desired to draw in a lot of cold air for heating, there will be a cooling effect not only on the core of the heater but also on the engine's complete cooling system. There are, however, several ways to meet the problem.

Simplest is to cut down on the flow of cold air to the heater, merely reheating car air. Another trick is to use a higher opening motor thermostat. And a third method is to cover the lower portion of the radiator of the car, using a piece of cardboard between the grille and the core.

One for the Book

Long periods of outdoor parking in the cold and failure to keep the gas tank filled resulted in the fuel line of one reader's car developing a bad case of freezing. Everything was thawed out and then cleaned. But when the car went into action again it was noticeably peevish. Every time the driver tried to accelerate the motor was sluggish, although it would always build up to good speed if he took it slowly. A smart mechanic guessed that the carburetor's acceleration pump had been damaged by ice.

Too Fast For Clutch

Oddly enough speed still is rough on the clutch, whether it be a conventional mechanical coupling or a fluid type. The bad actor is slippage.

A suction effect at speed causes the springs of a mechanical clutch to be partially compressed. Press the clutch pedal down when you are driving fast and you'll not how easily it falls. This means extra wear on the clutch facings. In the case of fluid couplings, the problem is slippage. This doesn't appear to harm the clutch itself but does result in lowered gas mileage at a time when the carburetor is hard pressed to be economical anyway. A new thought in automatic transmissions is to get away from this slippage effect.

Mechanic Joe Speaking

"If the spark plugs of your new car fail to give proper results, it doesn't necessarily mean that the factory furnished you with the wrong type. The chances are that your driving differs from normal."

"Normally plugs are a little on the hot side so that they will not be affected by fouling from oil, for most new engines burn oil until there is built up a layer of carbon at the top of the pistons. Hotter plugs also help check fouling from the rich mixture needed for starting and short runs around town. But if the car is driven hard or fast as a steady diet, a cooler type of plug probably would be more satisfactory. Under such conditions too hot plugs would have a too short point, life and there'd be difficulty keeping the gap normal."

Stall As A Clue

Whether the lube in the transmission is light enough for cold weather is easily determined by noting the engine's action when you have just started it and allow the clutch pedal to come up with the gears in neutral. If the engine immediately stalls when the clutch is released, it is a gentle reminder to go easy until the lube is warmed up, otherwise there's a good chance of damaging a transmission bearing.

Fun To Be Fooled?

So the engine isn't using so much oil lately? So you think this is due to your not traveling on the wide open road at speed? So you're pleased with the whole business?

Hold everything! The chances are that what registers as a full motor pan is one that is full of oil and diluent. This is the season for diluting in the grand manner. All that cold starting, those short inefficient runs and that richer mixture combine to send a lot of gasoline, water and acids into the crankcase.

Three To Remember

The fluttering of piston rings and some of the odd vibrations they set up has been found to be due to weakness of the rings at their ends. By partially bridging the gap it is possible to check this effect.

Using new washers will invariably help prevent failure to repair jobs. Use them to prevent damage to the engine and transmission drains, to get better results from spark plugs and to maintain engine and transmission balance whenever the flywheel cover is removed and replaced.

Even though the accident which your car may have suffered is a fairly minor one always check the motor mountings which are likely to be damaged.

No Infallible Rule

Just because there is no water in the crankcase doesn't mean that there is no possibility of a water leak at the cylinder head gasket. Water may be leaking only when the engine is running. Under such conditions, the water will go out the exhaust system as steam. Sometimes, water loss is via the rear motor block core plug which may be within the flywheel housing. In that event any water that leaks from the plug will go into the clutch instead of the motor, dripping from the drain at the bottom of the housing.

Part of Safety

The day is not far distant when any safety inspection will include the shock absorbers, for they control spring action and are essential in the reduction of gyrations and sway. I remember one of my cars which had adjustable shocks. Right from the dash I could change for a soft, medium or hard ride. All went well until the day I went around a sharp curve too fast with the shocks set at "soft." Fortunately the car didn't tip, but the sway was mighty like an accident.

It isn't enough to rock the car up and down by its bumpers when testing the shocks. The trade recommendation, loosening the shocks at the low connection and then testing resistance by hand.

In The Motor Mail

Q What would cause the tires of my car to wear in the center of the tread? I keep them properly inflated. The brakes do not grab. I do not drive fast? J. G. F.

A This is a plain case of over-inflation. You may be following the car maker's recommendations for tire pressures but it is two high for the load you customarily carry. Drop pressure about two pounds.

Q There is a very decided skip in the motor of my car and no amount of checking seems to help. All the spark plugs have been replaced. No valves stuck. Ignition has been carefully checked, and there is no evidence of air leaks around the intake manifold. Wm. L.

A This would be a good time to check for a worn breaker plate. Advancing and retarding of the spark isn't smooth. There may also be a faulty ground in the low tension system.

Q I am using a top-cylinder oiler which feeds a special lubricant to keep the rings and valves in condition. Will you kindly advise me what kind of gasoline I should use for the motor with this device in action—premium or regular? H. B. C.

A So far as the efficiency of the top oiler is concerned, it doesn't make any difference what type of fuel is used.

Q What would cause consistently low oil pressure? I had the motor overhauled even to the point of replacing the oil pump and rod bearings. When the motor is cold the pressure reads around 40 but drops to a mere 5 at idling after the oil has thinned down a bit. The pressure relief valve spring has been replaced without results. J. McB.

A When you reach this point it is time to think about wear on the camshaft bearings. For your make of car there are special oil feed controls which can be installed to help raise the pressure.

Q What do you think of the plan of racing the motor just before switching it off at night, so as to get a quicker start in the morning? H. D. Jr.

A This used to be quite widely used, and always with considerable speculation as to its value. My advice is to forget about the idea.

Q Do you favor the idea of cranking the engine for a few seconds before switching on the ignition? I know a fellow who does this and he says that the motor really starts better by conserving ignition when the starter-motor is drawing heavily on the battery for the ignition cranking. H. H. G.

A This is a good idea, but it can't be done with the more modern cars unless you raise the hood and disconnect the high tension wire at the coil. It's hardly worth all this bother.

COAL WEIGHTS BEING CHECKED

Harrisburg, March 11 (AP)—Pennsylvania today launched a statewide investigation of short-weight coal sales. The probe, in which all state inspectors of weights and measures were instructed to take part, was ordered by William S. Livengood, Jr., state Secretary of Internal Affairs.

Livengood took action after a report on the arrest of Patzy Zagaria, Johnstown, who was fined $600 for the misuse of 29 unauthorized weigh bills in the Johnstown area. A church and school were among the victims.

Director Joseph F. Bickley, of the Bureau of Standard Weights and Measures, said the prosecutions were made in cooperation with local inspectors.

The weigh bills were made out to represent numerous western Pennsylvania mines, some of them dated as far back as 1943. In some cases neither the mines nor the weigh-masters could be located.

Bickley said the certificates, devised to protect coal consumers, had worked very well in breaking up the short-weight coal racket until the recent thefts were reported.

Secretary Livengood warned every coal purchaser to "carefully examine the weight certificate accompanying each delivery of fuel."

"Where there is suspicion of attempt to defraud, the local inspector or the Department of Internal Affairs should be contacted directly."

Cadillac

FOUR NEW SERIES OF CARS...

The Series Sixty Special Sedan

..All Dramatically Restyled...and Powered by Cadillac's Sensational New Engine!

TODAY, we are presenting, for your consideration, the finest, most beautiful motor cars we have ever been privileged to announce.

They are the new Cadillacs for 1950—and we want you to come and see them.

We not only want you to see them—but we think you should see them. For to see and inspect these wonderful creations will make you a sharper judge of all cars—and increase your motor-car wisdom in every respect.

There are four entirely new series of cars—all with wholly new bodies, and all completely restyled. We think you'll agree that nothing so sleek and dynamic and beautiful has ever been seen on the world's streets and highways. They are arrestingly and breath-takingly gorgeous—and all are distinctively Cadillac.

And not only are they advanced in beauty—but their performance is finer in every way.

Cadillac's great new high-compression engine is even smoother; it is actually quicker in acceleration; and it runs so quietly that only the indicators reveal when it is in action. It is simply wonderful to drive.

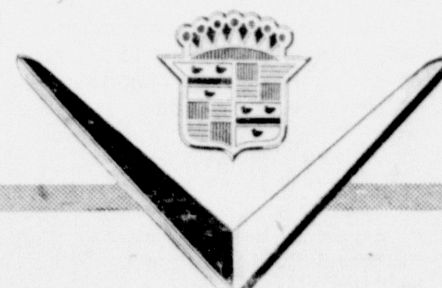

And—difficult as this will be for owners of 1949 Cadillacs to believe—the 1950 cars are even more economical to operate. Gasoline mileage really approaches that of the smaller, lowest-priced cars. It is no less than amazing that cars so big and luxurious should run so far on a gallon of gasoline.

Comfort and handling ease are also remarkably advanced. There is far finer road balance and over-all steadiness at all driving speeds. Steering is softer and more positive. Brakes are more efficient and longer-lived. The over-all satisfaction of driving—from every standpoint—is simply "out of this world."

Truly, here are cars so fine and beautiful that they deserve your personal consideration.

Make your plans now to come in and see them. You will be cordially welcome at any time.

Chapter 17

Anne was waiting for the bell, and in less than five minutes it rang. She wanted to dash down the stairs but held herself in control. There were going to be so many occasions henceforth when she would need self-control. She was fighting for something new and there was no one on her side. She heard Mary answer it and then gay voices in the lower hall. Celia and Tony were both laughing. She hoped he hadn't had any cocktails to make him laugh in that raw reckless way of his which disturbed her so much. His explanation disturbed her even more. He had something to laugh about now.

Celia and Tony burst into the room together, laughing. Tony had his arm about her waist and Celia leaned against him as they squeezed through the door. Celia waved her hand gaily.

"Here we are again. Tony took the way in a taxi and brought me back in his own swell car. Things have been happening in little old New York. I see. And tea in the sanctum-sanctorum. Wonders never cease. And the famous Mrs. Dalbow blinding me with her diamonds."

"You don't need to proclaim you've had a drink, Celia. It's quite obvious. But you haven't had so many that you need to be helped."

Adele was neat. Celia hung gay arms about her and kissed her.

"I was wrong. Everything hasn't changed. You haven't. Except that you look older, of course."

Adele pushed her away. "I'll always be younger than you. And need less make-up."

Roger held his hand out to Tony as he had the night Tony had scorned it and carried Anne away in his arms. He was still a host in his home. Tony grasped it warmly, gaily, and his voice was definitely half fellow well met.

"You're looking swell, Roger. The way Anne talked I thought you might be pining away. Hello, darling. Are we awfully late?"

He managed to kiss Anne while still holding Roger's plump hand. He nodded to Adele and went to shake hands with her while Celia kissed her father. He had no awe of Adele now.

"How's David? Still coining money in advertising? That's a fine racket."

Adele's eyes narrowed. "We hear you have become famous."

"Say infamous if you mean that. Anne is candid enough, aren't you, dear?"

Celia was kissing Anne. Celia said:

"Anne knows how lucky she is to catch a man who is going places. Don't be modest, Tony. That belongs with failure. Success not only succeeds but knows why it does. When you go ahead you don't look back."

"Is that Hollywood philosophy, Celia?" queried Adele coolly.

"Ask David. He was out there. But don't be surprised if he doesn't tell you too much about where he went and what he did."

Adele waved her hand. "I am not jealous. I know David."

Anne offered tea. Tony accepted. Celia laughed, her eyes dancing.

"Can you really drink tea after all those cocktails we had? Father, we knew we couldn't hope for more than sherry here and not very much of that, so we got a good start on the way. Were you worried I had crashed?"

"There was no need to worry."

Roger spoke quietly as if in faint protest against her loudness. She caught Tony's arm and struck a posture.

"Anne, don't you think we go well together? I told Tony he should go into pictures."

"And I said I could make very good money right here."

Tony ran a hand through his dark hair. Adele raised her voice.

"Don't you want to see your children, Celia?"

"Oh, they'll be around later. Now I'm too excited. I told Tony. Do you know that even in California they are talking about him and the way he got Burns off? Anne, do you realize that?"

"I am not surprised."

"Nor I," added Adele. "Don't good gangsters all try to become producers?"

"Tony listen to that," Celia poked him. "Tell her off."

Tony laughed. "Poor Adele is as out of date. There are no good gangsters. Where would I be if there were? How would I make any money unless they were very bad? The worse they are the better for me. The dumber they are the more trouble they'll get into. And that's where I come in."

Celia flung her arms about him. "That's the way to talk. The more names the papers call you the more advertising you get."

"Isn't there bad as well as good advertising?"

It was Roger's mild protest. Celia grinned at Tony.

"Listen to old age and long inexperience. All advertising is good. Anne, if you had ever been around and really lived you'd know what all this means. Adele, don't wave your hands. I can't stand the diamonds. But I suppose you do have to run along, don't you? It was good of you to stay for five minutes in my honor."

Adele smiled. "I am staying to dinner. And calling David to come. We mustn't miss any of this comedy."

She went into the front parlor to telephone. Celia pulled off her gloves.

"Who wants to hear me sing a song? Don't all speak at once."

"I do."

Tony said it and escorted her to the piano. Anne got up and took his tea cup to him. He put his arm about her waist possessively.

"Mad at me, darling?"

"How could she be?" cried Celia. "What song shall it be?"

"Could it be 'Love Me Tonight'?"

She flung him a kiss. "It most certainly could. Here you are."

Celia's voice filled the room. Anne slipped out to get more tea. Roger went to a window. The children and dogs were looking up, wondering about the singing. He motioned to them to come up.

Chapter 18

Celia eloped with Tony the day before Anne's wedding. She was to have been bridesmaid and Don best man both at Tony's request. There was to have been much fuss and ceremony at Tony's insistence. Many people were invited, mostly by him, because Anne knew so few people outside her own family. She was the girl who stayed home, after all. Tony wanted the whole world to see him marry Anne, he had said, and there was to be a big hotel reception later. The night before the scheduled wedding David was to act as host at a dinner party at a famous restaurant.

And nothing came to pass. Celia had decided to stay at a hotel so as not to cause more work for Mary, so she said. Adele said it was so as to escape her own children. Even Adele was stunned by the real reason when she realized it. Obviously Celia was being too chummy with Tony, but after all Celia was an actress. She had married an actor, played on Broadway, been in a couple of movies, and just come from Hollywood. Ironically enough it was Adele who got the message. Celia wasted no words or thought. It was brief.

Tony and I just married. Off on honeymoon to California. See you soon.

Celia Raymond.

The message was addressed to Adele at her father's house. She was helping Anne with her simple wedding dress that Anne had insisted on making herself. It was one of the few things about which Anne had been firm. Adele had just finished telling her that she had been right and the dress was perfect when Mary called up that there was a telegram for her. Adele ran down, thinking that only David would know she was there and wondering why he would telegraph her. Celia never entered her mind as she signed for the message and pulled it from the envelop. Mary stood by watching her. Adele had to read it three times before she was sure her eyes weren't failing her. Only then did she put her hand to her heart and gasp:

"My God, what must we do now? What can we do?"

The twins came trooping into the hall after Mary. The dogs came, too, of course, and stood with eager eyes and tongues sticking out. Adele pushed through them and ran up the marble steps to the parlor floor. The sight of the children completely unnerved her. She had to sit down and think. Her knees felt wobbly under her. She thought Roger was out, but instead he was sitting at his desk in the back parlor. He looked up at her, pen in hand.

"What's the matter, Adele?"

"Matter? I could kill her! I should have killed her long ago!"

He sighed. "You must mean Celia. What has she done now?"

For answer she thrust the message across the desk toward him. He looked at it a moment, then raised his eyes in utter bewilderment.

"I don't understand. What does it mean? A joke?"

"It means Celia has married Tony."

"But she can't. Adele. He is marrying Anne tomorrow."

Anne came in from the hall, a lovely figure in her bridal dress. "Adele, what have you been telling father to upset him now?"

Roger covered the message with both his big hands. Adele, yielding to impulse, kissed him with unwonted affection.

"We have to tell her, Father."

For a second the shaken man struggled to control his emotion; then he fell forward on top of the message, his whole body shaken by sobs. Anne stared at him, then ran to his side to console him. She tried to lift his head and kiss him. Tears welled up in her own eyes. Roger heaved himself up in his chair and then to his feet. His two hands clutched the paper and he struggled for self-control.

"I am sorry I forgot myself. Your dress is beautiful, Anne, but you won't need it."

"Tony!" She stood rigid. "Something has happened to Tony?"

"Yes, my dear. He swallowed a lump in his throat. 'Celia married Tony this morning. They have gone to California.'

The girl stared at him. "Celia couldn't marry Tony, Father. He is marrying me. We got the house. It is a joke."

Roger waved the message. "Maybe this is a mistake. They do make mistakes. It may be for someone else."

Adele pointed. "It is signed Celia Raymond."

"We mustn't be hasty. We must call and find out. Adele, don't say another word. I insist you keep quiet. Anne, dear, sit down and rest while I phone. Don't get excited." She patted his hand on her arm. "I am not excited."

He rushed into the front parlor where the telephone was. He would never even consider having a phone in the room that held his books and where he wanted repose. Adele waited until he was out, then made a helpless gesture.

"Of course it's true. What are we going to do about it?"

Anne nodded slowly. "There is nothing we can do. If there is no wedding, there is no wedding. I can take off this dress. I won't need it."

"Why don't you cry, or shriek, or curse, or faint? Anything but sit there as if nothing had happened."

"That's it, Adele. Nothing has happened. Something was to have happened tomorrow but now it won't. I was to have left Father all alone, but now I won't go. Aren't you glad I am not marrying Tony after all?"

"Yes. But how can you be so calm about it? Don't you want to catch Celia by the throat and choke the life out of her?"

"No, Adele. Why should I hate her? Or him?"

"You aren't human. If a man did that to me I—"

"Exactly. You'd take it. Now I'll go change my dress."

Adele pointed. "It is signed Celia Raymond."

DEMANDS 'TOTAL DIPLOMACY' IN COLD WAR PLAN

By JOHN SCALI

Washington, March 11 (AP)—A new cold war battlecry—"total diplomacy"—was raised for Americans today by Secretary of State Acheson. Its meaning: an all-out effort, short of shooting, to curb Russian expansion.

Declaring that the nation must do far more than it is now doing to halt Soviet plans for "world domination," Acheson said: "We clearly are not focusing our resources in the winning of that struggle."

What's needed, he said, is a single-minded, "voluntary" campaign by all elements of the nation—Congress, the executive departments of the government, and the people. He mentioned particularly such institutions as business, agriculture, the press and the radio.

First Held Secret

Acheson sketched this new outline of national support for United States foreign policy three weeks ago, in an informal White House talk before the advertising council, a private organization of leaders in the field of advertising.

Officials said the talk was kept secret, in the expectation that Acheson might use the same ideas in a public address in late February or early March. When this did not materialize it was decided to make a reconstructed version of his speech public.

The text given out last night was not an actual transcript but a version prepared from memory by Francis Russell, State Department Director of Public Affairs. It was approved by Acheson. In it, he declared that the United States must follow two closely related lines of foreign policy.

Two Policy Lines

The first, he said, is "to meet wherever possible all thrusts of the Soviet Union"—as has been done in Greece and Turkey.

The second policy line, he said, "must be to create those economic, political, social and psychological conditions that strengthen and create confidence in the democratic way of life."

In this connection, he cited the European recovery program and American aid in bringing independence to Indonesia. Then he added: "One of the things that we must do is to enable other countries to buy with their own products the raw materials that they need to feed and clothe and employ their own people. This means that we must buy their goods and their services to a greater extent than at present."

Fatally Burned In Kittanning Blaze

Kittanning, Pa., March 11 (AP)—Fire Friday burned out the big Ellermeyer building on North McKean street and killed one of nearly a score of tenants.

Destroyed were about five apartments, a beauty shop and an auto parts agency. Approximately 40 automobiles, stored behind a fire wall in the rear half of the building, were undamaged.

Killed was Don McElfresh, about 45, who apparently was suffocated by smoke on his third trip into the burning building to recover his belongings.

Kittanning Policeman Wade Cochran, who was among the first to spot the fire at 6:10 a. m., said the blaze apparently started in the auto parts agency. There is no estimate of damage immediately available.

Eagles Officials Under Indictment

Ottawa, O., March 11 (AP)—The grand jury Friday indicted three national officers of the Fraternal Order of Eagles and one state officer on charges ranging from publicizing a lottery to blackmail.

The officers and the indictments against them: Matthew L. Brown of Springfield, administrative director of the Grand Aerie, three indictments charging publicizing a lottery and one indictment charging aiding and abetting blackmail; Joseph Kellner of Springfield, O., state Eagle secretary, three indictments charging publicizing a lottery; Joseph A. Gunderman of St. Marys, O., deputy grand worthy president and Ohio deputy auditor of the Eagles, three indictments — one charging blackmail, one charging publicizing a lottery and one doing business as agent for an out-of-state corporation not licensed to do business in Ohio; and Barnett H. Goldstein of Portland, Ore., Grand Aerie legal adviser and former Washington State attorney general, one indictment charging doing business as an agent of an out-of-state cor-

THE MODERN INTERPRETATION OF SPRING

THIS new idea of keeping in style by shortening or lengthening last year's garments is a fine one PROVIDED your dry cleaner can remove the old hem line marks. In many instances, this is impossible, due to the wear and fading of the materials. Many garments cannot be wet cleaned to remove these marks. Why not save yourself the disappointment and expense by consulting PROSPERITY CLEANERS at Railroad Street, rear of Carlisle Street, before you go ahead and shorten or lengthen the garments. Yours for satisfaction and service.—PROSPERITY CLEANERS.

MAN WHO TRIED SUICIDE ADMITS SLAYING WOMAN

Omaha, March 11 (AP)—A bizarre story of a Pittsburgh slaying blurted out by a man who said he tried to commit suicide by swallowing razor blades, was being checked by police today.

The man, a patient at Offutt Air Force Base hospital, was identified by an Air Force spokesman as Gordon Keith Anderson, 25, of Kansas City, Mo.

Charles J. Nelson, public relations spokesman for Strategic Air Force headquarters at Offutt AFB, said officers from the Office of Special Investigation obtained a written statement from Anderson last night, admitting the slaying of Jean Bruno of Pittsburgh, Pa., last November 25.

Nelson said a man had called the base the night of March 3, identifying himself as an airman and saying he had swallowed razor blades in a suicide attempt at an Omaha hotel. He gave the name of Vernon E. Andersen.

Identified By Mother

At the base hospital an operation was performed for removal of the razor blades and Andersen's mother was notified. When she arrived she told officers he was not Vernon Andersen, but her brother, Gordon Keith Andersen.

Yesterday OSI officers began questioning Andersen about his identity and the story of the slaying resulted. After checking with Pittsburgh police to confirm that such a crime had been committed the Air Force officers obtained a written statement from Andersen. Nelson said details of the statement were not available.

Omaha police entered the case when the Air Force determined that Andersen apparently is a civilian rather than an airman. Police Sgt. W. O. Lickert said when Andersen is released from the hospital police will take him into custody. Two detectives went to the hospital early today to question him. Air Force officials said today Andersen's condition is good.

PAIR JAILED FOR TAKING $4,211

Reading, Pa., March 11 (AP)—A Berks county court judge gave a middle-aged immigrant an opportunity Thursday to suggest punishment for a young couple convicted of stealing his life's savings after he befriended them.

But the 53-year-old Italian immigrant, Ignazio Lachino, was overwhelmed by grief at the loss of his savings, and could only ask the court to get back his money. He said he had saved it over many years to bring his wife and two children to this country.

Assistant District Attorney Leonard Yoder told the court that Lachino last October found Lawrence Plastino, 23, and his blonde 19-year-old wife, Jean, penniless and without shelter. Plastino is a former resident of Columbia, Pa., and his wife formerly lived at York, Pa.

Yoder said Lachino invited the young couple into his rooming house quarters to sleep. The next morning, the attorney said, when Lachino left for his laborer's job, the Plastinos found his savings of $4,211 in a trunk and took the money.

As Lachino could not overcome his grief to suggest punishment, Judge H. Robert Mays sentenced Plastino to 2½ to five years in Berks county prison and sentenced his wife to an indeterminate term in the state home for women at Muncy.

None of the $4,211, which represented Lachino's savings, has been recovered.
